

McWeadon
Enabling Learning Without Boundaries

PD505: Black Masculinity

Seeking anyone who works with, reports to, or supervises Black men or teachers who work in predominately Black neighborhoods. This class is also of interest to women who are raising bi-racial boys or anyone who is interested in the path to maturity of young black men.

McWeadon is currently offering PD505: Black Masculinity, a 4-week online course with special discounted rate of $99. McWeadon instructor Mr. Ransaw will be your personal coach and guide as you develop your skills in the course. Mr. Ransaw has taught similar courses at accredited higher education institutions in the United States.

Learn in a highly facilitated manner at your convenience. Our instructors are personally accountable to ensuring the utmost quality and interaction, and the credibility of this valuable learning environment.

ABOUT THE COURSE

PD505: Black Masculinity

This class will examine international, historical, psychological, mythical, sexual, health, legislative and sociopolitical influences that shape the gender identity of Black males along their path to manhood. We will draw from social science, communication studies, gender studies, political science, anthropology and ethnic studies disciplines, and connect theoretical themes such as rites of passage, masculinity, Afrocentricity, diffusion, social accommodation, media cultivation, and, in particular, postcolonial theory. Both men and women of all backgrounds, nationalities and ethnicities are encouraged to enroll.

Session Dates:

July 13 – August 9, 2009

Enroll Today

ABOUT THE INSTRUCTOR

Theodore Ransaw

Mr. Ransaw is a cultural anthropologist with a teaching background in primary, secondary and Higher Education. His research interests are in culture, gender and religion and their influence on education with a special emphasis on symbolic interaction. He has a two-part career goal: to teach effectively and to contribute significant and meaningful scholarship. His teaching goals are to nurture, challenge and inspire and to teach traditional subjects in innovative ways.

For more information, please contact:

transaw@mcweadon.com

<http://mcweadon.com/courses>